WEATHER OF CONCERN

Weather of Concern

Northern California:

- A storm system will bring significant rainfall and gusty winds to northwest California starting late tonight and continuing through Monday. The bulk of the rain and wind will occur over Mendocino County as this storm system is approaching from the southwest.

Southern California:

- The Tuesday morning commute will be highly impacted by the incoming Pacific storm. Southerly winds will be on the increase Monday night peaking slightly before and during the heaviest rainfall which is expected between 0400 and 1000 hours Tuesday.

Active Weather Warnings, Watches and Advisories by County:

- <https://alerts-v2.weather.gov/counties/CA>

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

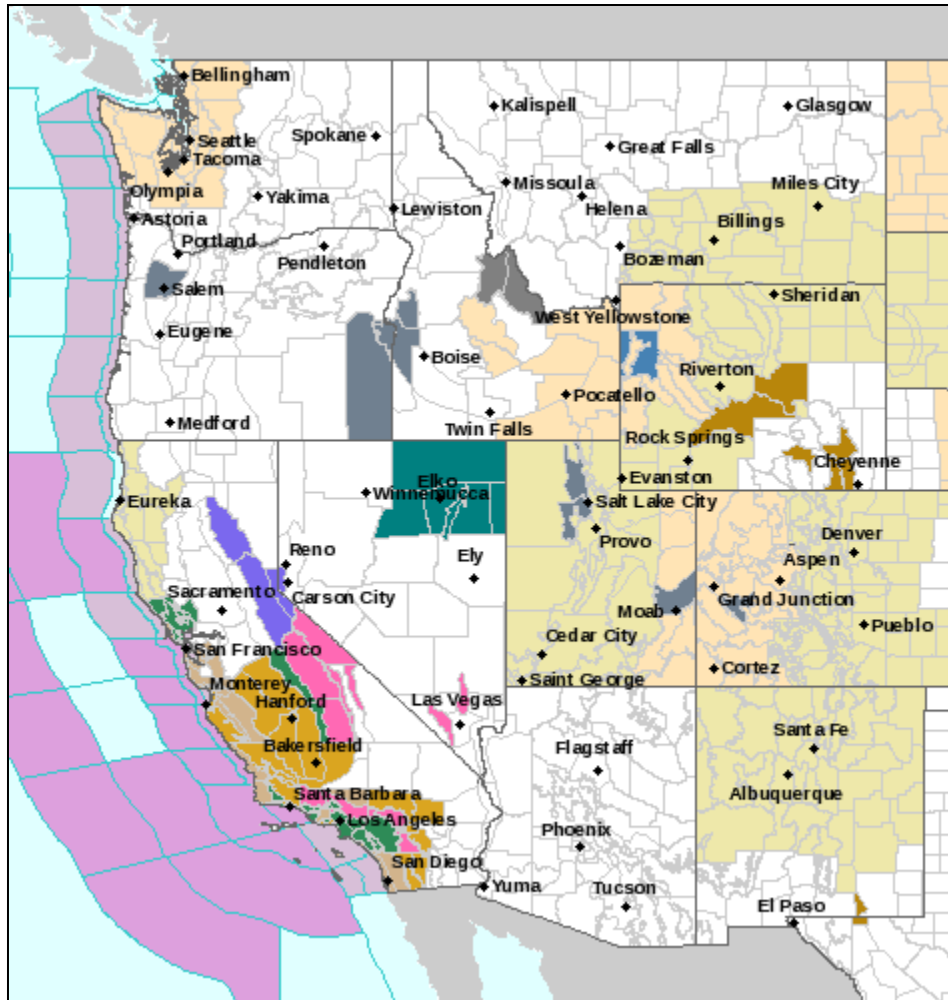

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

Mainly light precipitation is spreading inland across Northern California early this morning as moisture and lift increase across the region from the southwest. Snow levels may start out near the pass levels this morning as evaporative cooling associated with the onset of precipitation briefly lowers them, but they will quickly rise above the passes by afternoon as the atmosphere saturates.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

A strong storm system will affect the area today and Tuesday. The storm will bring significant rain, mountain snow, gusty winds, and a slight chance of thunderstorms to the region. Debris flows across the recent burn areas are possible with the heavy rain. Gusty northerly winds and a diminishing shower threat on Wednesday will be followed by dry weather and a warming trend into the weekend.
